

The increasing ecological pollution makes the accumulation of heavy metals in the body inevitable, such as mercury, lead, cadmium, etc., depending on the level of exposure.

This accumulation can affect cognitive abilities, reasoning, and concentration, as well as reduce the efficiency of the immune system and predispose to degenerative and endocrine diseases.

Furthermore, this polluted environment significantly increases the production of free radicals in the body.

The components of the formula have the ability to bind to heavy metals and form water-soluble chelates, eliminable through urine.

The powerful antioxidants in the formula provide antioxidant protection, significantly neutralizing free radicals.
